Even as it grapples with the row over some Facebook users copying pictures of unsuspecting girls and misusing them by morphing the images, the popular social networking site could be in for more trouble.

The Ministry of Law and Justice has forwarded to the Secretary General of the Supreme Court and Registrar General of the Delhi High Court "for further appropriate action" a complaint that pages opened by Facebook in the name of these courts were hosting posts with comments insulting various judges that were highly defamatory and contemptuous.

They also carried critical reviews of judgments showing the judiciary, and the judges who authored it, in poor light. Legal experts say Facebook is prima facie in clear violation of IT Act and can be hauled up under Contempt of Courts Act.

OFFENCES ATTRACTED

- Section 66A of Information Technology (IT) Act- Punishment for sending offensive messages through communication service
- Section 67 of IT Act: Punishment for publishing or transmitting obscene material in electronic form. Five year jail or ₹10 lakhs fine
- Section 499 Indian Penal Code --Defamation
- Section 500 of IPC- two years jail with fine or both
- Contempt of Courts Act

The complaint has been forwarded to secretary general of Supreme Court and registrar general for further appropriate action.

As it grapples with the row over some Facebook users copying pictures of unsuspecting girls and misusing them by morphing the images, the popular social networking site could be in for more trouble

Though the complaint by a Delhi-based filmmaker Ulhas PR was forwarded to the courts as early as on November 23, the highly-defamatory posts could still be seen on Facebook.

Ulhas's complaint to the Ministry of Law and Justice said: "This is about Facebook. It has started a page on its own by the name of Supreme Court of India and Delhi High Court. In these pages insulting reviews of judgments are posted."

MY BIZ: Trai attacks Facebook for 'misleading users'

In its reply, the ministry said: "This has been forwarded to the secretary general of Supreme Court and registrar general for further appropriate action".

While questions are being raised if social networking sites can at all be allowed to open pages in the name of courts and allow users to post any comment when the country has a stringent contempt of court law, Facebook has written on the page that "this page is created based on what people who use Facebook are interested in."

Lawyer and cyber expert Pavan Duggal (left) said 'This amounts to clear lowering of stature of judiciary in the mind of the people'; Pictured right, complainant Ulhas PR

'Serious offence'

"This amounts to clear lowering of stature of judiciary in the mind of the people and once the complaint is brought to the notice of the service provider, that is Facebook, it has to exercise due diligence. The identity of the people who have posted such messages can be given by Facebook and they can be prosecuted," noted lawyer and cyber expert Pavan Duggal said.

"The offence is a prima facie violation of Section 66A of Information Technology Act (Punishment for sending offensive messages through communication service), Section 67 of IT Act (Punishment for publishing or transmitting obscene material in electronic form).

Five year jail or Rs 10 lakh fine), Section 499 of Indian Penal Code (defamation) and Section 500 of IPC (two years jail with fine or both) and Contempt of Courts Act", Duggal said.

"If these sites are also named Supreme Court of India and High Court of Delhi, it's a violation of the Intellectual Property Rights of these institutions and therefore it is an unfair use. It is a chance to act tough and an opportunity to send a strong message to the cyberspace that you cannot take liberty with judicial institutions. This is hitting the judiciary below the belt using the cyberspace," he added.

Contempts act

So what's an offence under Contempts of Courts Act?

Anything that curtails or impairs the freedom of limits of the judicial proceedings, any conduct that tends to bring the authority and administration of law into disrespect or disregard or to interfere with or prejudice parties or their witnesses during litigation, consisting of words spoken or written which obstruct or tend to obstruct the administration of justice, publishing words which tend to bring the administration of Justice into contempt, to prejudice the fair trial of any cause or matter which is the subject of Civil or Criminal proceeding or in any way to obstruct the cause of Justice.
